PRENTIS PLEADS TEMPORARY INSANITY TO VOTE ON SIX AMENDMENTS

The state's witnesses were examined this morning in the Prentis case. About 9:30 the state rested, and since the defendant pleads temporary insanity and his witnesses are physicians who could not have arrived before the 11 o'clock train, court adjourned till 1:30 this afternoon.

Prentis it will be remembered is the man who on the 24th of April, it being Sunday of this year, shot his wife to death in front of the residence of Mr. C. H. Nash at Allen, and who shortly afterward attempted suicide.

The court house was pretty well crowded this morning and great deal of interest manifested in the trial. A goodly number of people from Allen were present including Prentis' relatives and his little boy.

Mrs. C. H. Nash was first on the stand. Her testimony was in effect that on Sunday afternoon about 4:30 April 24. She was attracted by screams from the street and upon running to the window saw Mrs. Prentis running down the street with Prentis after her with a gun. About the time Mrs. Nash reached the window Mrs. Prentis had reached the yard gate (Mrs. Nash's) and had turned facing her husband with her hands thrown up. Prentis fired and turned toward his own home. The little son of Prentis, a boy about 3 years of age, who had run down the street behind his father threw his residence at the time of the murder corroborated Mrs. Nash's story. Said he did not go to the woman till after she was dead and that Prentis walked away from the scene without paying any attention to his little son, who had followed him and was holding his mother around the neck.

Mr. Nash in his testimony corroborated the statements of the previous witnesses. When he heard the screams he started to the hall door but turned and looked out at a window when he heard his wife exclaim, "He has killed her."

Dr. Hudson testified that the woman was dead when he arrived and that she died of a gun shot wound which was necessarily fatal. Arms around his mother's neck and cried.

Mr. Thompson who was at the Nash residence the first witness this afternoon was Mr. Jumper, uncle of the deceased Mrs. Prentis. Jumper stated that he has known the defendant since early boyhood; that he had always been a good boy; that he was agreeable at home, kind to his wife and apparently Mr. and Mrs. Prentis were congenial in their domestic relations.

J. W. Prentis, the father of the defendant was placed on the stand next and testified as to his son's early

MANY PROBLEMS CONFRONT OKLAHOMA VOTERS IN NO. VEMBER.

Will Linn, secretary of the state election board, will Wednesday submit a complete state ticket, with six proposed constitutional amendments to the state board of public affairs for it to let the contract for the printing of the ballots. It is expected that the contract will be awarded this week.

It is now too late for any one to withdraw his name from the ticket, or object because it is not correctly spelled or any other mistakes that should happen.

Governor C. N. Haskell has prepared proclamations for calling three elections on issues initiated by the people. Two have been initiated by the legislature and one is a referendum vote on a bill enacted by the legislature to determine by direct vote whether it should become a law.

The three bills initiated by the people are: The local option and high license, woman suffrage and the Campbell Russell New Jerusalem idea. Because of the election of June 11 establishing the capitol in Oklahoma City, it is not likely any thing will be done with Senator Russell's idea for locating the capitol.

The two measures initiated by the legislature are: Repeal of article nine section nine, which is to encourage domestic concerns in building more railroads, and a provision proposed by Senator Campbell Russell to apportion all school taxes paid by public service corporations through the county in which they are paid instead of the taxes being used exclusively by the school districts in which the public service corporations are located.

The referendum vote is for the approval or rejection of house bill No. 120 approving the general and primary election law.

Already a deep interest has been manifested in three or four of the proposed measures and it is probable that some of them may creep into the election issues, notwithstanding the efforts of the leaders to keep all the constitutional questions free from party discussion.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT COUNTY SCHOOLS

Superintendent Pierce's annual report just completed shows that in Pontotoc county there was a total of 8,317 pupils enumerated in the scholastic census for last year. Of these there were 7,903 white pupils, of whom 3,942 were boys and 3,961 were girls. There were 419 negroes, 199 boys and 220 girls.

The actual enrollment in the schools showed a total of 7,935. Of this number 6,583 were whites and 255 negroes. There were 3,482 white boys and 3,101 white girls, 129 negro boys and 126 negro girls.

Outside of Ada 110 teachers were employed in the schools of the county. There was paid to them in salaries the sum of $38,266. Taxes paid by the sixty-one districts, $34,005. Bonds issued, $32,678. School houses built, 24. Value of same $58,563. Certificates issued: First grade, 14; second, 35; third, 37.

Jailed on Liquor Charge.

Deputy John Kitchen and John Burns brought M. P. Helm a Stone-wall grocerman in this morning on a charge of possessing and selling intoxicating liquor. Helm was arraigned before County Judge Barton who placed his bond at $300. Upon failure to make bond the defendant was committed to the county jail.

At the time of his arrest it is alleged he had on his person $53.00 and seven pints of whiskey.

Mules Stolen.

Ed Chapman, who lives six miles south of town has lost a pair of mules very mysteriously and thinks they were stolen. They disappeared Monday night.

PRESIDENT BRILES SUED FOR $230

MRS. J. H. FUGATE, NEE MISS SALLIE MCCAIN CLAIMS SHE WAS NOT PAID PROMISED SALARY.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 13.—An affidavit accusing Charles W. Briles, superintendent of the Ada Normal school, with having withheld $230 of the salary voted by the state legislature for payment of his secretary has been given to certain members of the state normal school board, which includes State School Superintendent Cameron, State Treasurer James Menefee and John L. Mitsch, of Oklahoma City, secretary to the board.

The affidavit is made by Miss Sallie McCain of Ada, Okla., who served during the twelve months prior to July 14 last as secretary to Briles.

The young woman charges that she was employed with the understanding that if the legislature failed to make an appropriation that she was to receive $50 a month, but that if the legislature should make an appropriation to conduct the school that her salary would be fixed at $60 per month.

He Took Warrant.

The affidavit recites that an appropriation of $60 was made by the legislature for her salary, and that when she received a warrant for $440 in March, which paid her in full up to that time, Briles took it.

"He told me that he would take it and get the money on it for me," she charges, "but when he returned he only offered to give me $150."

She took the money. Now in her affidavit to the state board she says that Briles has withheld $230 of her salary and makes an intimation that he may have spent it to support other departments of the school for which the legislature did not make an appropriation.

Board Doesn't Act.

The affidavit was in possession of certain members of the board at its meeting two weeks ago, but they failed to urge the board to take action on it.

In closing her affidavit the young woman says:

"Affiant further states that for many weeks after it had been announced by the Shawnee papers that I was to be succeeded, Briles told me that he was going to do all in his power to aid me in retaining my position, that although my successor had been agreed upon perhaps as early as April, I was not advised of the fact that I was to be displaced until a very few days before the expiration of my term, July 14, 1910. During that time I refused a very desirable position and am now without means to support my widowed mother and others dependent on me."

The editor of the News called Prof. Briles over the phone this afternoon and asked about the above article. It was too late for him to make a statement in today's paper, but he will do so tomorrow.

IMPORTANT SUPREME COURT DECISION

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 13.—State school money deposited in state banks is not protected by the depositors' guaranty fund, was the holding of Associate Justice Kane in reversing and remanding cases of the United States Fidelity and the Southern Bank Commissioner as custodian of the defunct Columbia Bank and Trust company, appealed from Oklahoma County.

The Fidelity Company was surety for $50,000 and the other was guarantor for $40,000 of the permanent school fund, deposited with the Columbia bank and Trust company at the time of its failure in September of last year. When the state sought to collect the $90,000 payment was resisted by the insurance companies upon the theory they were not liable until all the assets of the institution as well as all the state guaranty fund, under which the bank was operated, had been exhausted.

This contention was sustained by the District Court. The Supreme court holds, however, that a surety may maintain an action against its principal to compel discharge of a liability when the same once becomes due. It is announced that the law provides an elaborate plan of safeguarding deposits of school money and that protection of the depositors' guaranty fund does not apply. The opinions announce that Associate Justices Williams and Hayes were disqualified.

From Kingfisher County.

In affirming the district court of Kingfisher county, Associate Justice Hayes, in the case of John Holmes et al., against Luella Holmes, holds that where a wife occupies as a home the homestead set apart by order of the probate court from the estate of her deceased husband, for use of herself as a home, the same is not liable to partition at a suit of the heirs of the deceased husband.

M. Vandenburg, appealed from Choctaw county which was affirmed.

Building on Allotment.

Justice Hayes held in the case of Lula Keel against D. W. Ingersoll, appealed from Marshall county, and reversed, that where a building is situated upon a Chickasaw allotment, restrictions of the allottee having not been removed, and the building having been erected before statehood, in the absence of an agreement between the parties to the contrary, the building attaches to the estate of the allottee and becomes a part of the realty, and no material man's lien can attach to it. The only estate of the allottee in the land to which the building can and does attach is one that can neither be alienated by the allottee nor be subject to any lien.

In judging a newspaper exercise the same judgment you would in eating a fish, swallow the meat and throw away the bones. There is this difference, however, allowance must be made for the fact that what is bone for one is meat for another. What will choke one will be a palatable morsel to some other reader.

It cost the taxpayers about $3,000 for the expenses of President Taft to speak at St. Paul on conservation, and it cost the "Outlook" proprietors more than $5000 for Teddy's speech there and his little swing around the circle. This is fairly expensive campaigning for a starter for the republicans; but the democratic statesmen have to dig into their own pockets for campaign expenses.

We do not share the alarm expressed by some writers and orators over the rapid drift of the population towards the cities. Education is working wonders with the people. Formerly it was thought that no success worth mentioning could be had unless one were located in some large city. Wages on the farm were formerly low and the profits of farming small. Now, however, since the introduction of scientific methods of farming, and the rapid advance in prices as a result of the great demand from the cities for more food, the farmer has become about the most successful business man of the lot. The profitability of any business determines its status and since farming has reached a point never before attained, the boys of the next generation will naturally stay with the farm. Another condition that formerly existed was the isolation of the farmer. He was too busy to go after his mail often than once a week and he was cut off from the outside world as completely as if he had lived on an island of the sea. In these later days rural delivery and telephones have put the farmer in close touch with everything that is going on.

If monkeys know insane people when they see them why wouldn't it be a good idea to employ monkeys as experts in brainstorm murder trials.—Oklahoman.

What other city in the United States is confronted with a condition similar to that in Oklahoma City—a demand for new residences far exceeding the possibility of immediate supply?—Oklahoma City Times.

Ada is another.

The final baseball games of the season are now being played and already the football squads of the leading schools are reporting for practice. We shall soon be regaled with long articles describing the exploits of the heroes of the gridiron, and hear their praises sung throughout this sport-loving land. Of course the game has its enemies. However, popularity. Thousands will still flock through the gates when the game is called to cheer their favorite team to victory. It is the favorite game of the writer. I could never play the game with any degree of success, but a well matched game has charms to me that surpass any other form of sport.

The political wisacres have been burying the Democratic party for the past quarter of a century, but the result in Maine indicates that the party is about the liveliest corpse on record. Except in 1880, when the fusion Democratic and Greenback ticket carried the state, Maine has been a Republican stronghold since that party was organized. In fact, Texas has been no more solid Democratic than Maine has been Republican. And now when the Republicans thought they had thrown the last clods upon the grave of Democracy, the corpse comes to life and mocks their efforts. The case is all the more puzzling to them because it is just the election of a governor on account of local issues and the unpopularity of his opponent, but at least three congressmen and a good share of the members of the legislature share the victory. It is another sign of revolt among the people against the dictation of political bosses and proves that hereafter they are to do their own thinking. In other words, machine politics is no longer popular and the stronger the machine the greater the wreck will be.

HASKELL MAY NOT BE TRIED

LATE DECISION IN SIMILAR CASES MAY CAUSE PROSECUTION TO BE DROPPED.

Oklahoma Cit, Sept. 13.—Governor Charles N. Haskell and his attorneys are jubilant over the discovery of a late court decision which they are sure will gain freedom for the governor from the land fraud charges contained in the indictment against him, which is to be brought up for trial at the coming session of the federal district court for eastern Oklahoma at McAlester October 16.

The governor gained knowledge of the decision Friday. His son, Norman, was the first to advise him of the existence of the opinion and later lawyers from all parts of the state who had read the decision in an issue of the federal reporter which has just been published, fired in citations from the decision.

The decision was rendered in a Wyoming case by the St. Louis circuit court of appeals June 18, 1910. Ellsworth C. Lonabaugh and two associates were tried and convicted of Wyoming land frauds which were even more apparent than those charged against Haskell.

They pleaded that they were not subject to prosecution under the relief given them by the statute of limitations. They were refused this relief and carried the case to the circuit court of appeals on error.

The appellate court reversed the decision of the lower court and its ruling applied to Haskell's case would bar him from prosecution for frauds charged against him after September, 1904.

The present indictment was brought against him in 1909. According to the governor's way of looking at it the indictment is, therefore, five years too late.

It is probable that his attorneys at the opening of the trial in McAlester will move to quash the indictment and will cite the ruling of the highest court.

Money in Peanuts.

From Detroit News-Tribune.

The person who buys a nickel's worth of peanuts to munch at the ball game, to feed to the squirrels in the park, or to gladden the hearts of the kiddies at home, scarcely realizes that he has contributed to an industry that last year framed a $1,000,000 crop, which, placed on the market in various forms reached the enormous sum of $36,000,000. But it is a fact.

This little seductive nut—a resolution to "eat just one" is soon forgotten—whose birthplace is America, was, until comparatively recently, unappreciated, either as to the "money in it" or as a really nutritious product. Today the peanut plays an important part in pleasure from the swell dinner party to the ever-present democracy of the circus, ball game or picnic.

By far the largest part of the crop is consumed from the peanut stand, yet there are millions of bushels that go to the fattening of hogs throughout the South and the feeding of poultry, while the vines, often cured as hay, feed thousands of head of cattle, and even old Mother Earth is nourished by the roots of the plant, which furnishes nitrogen from the air.

The result of all this is, that scientists claim that the peanut, which in the past was not very highly regarded, is the only food staple that will at once nourish man, beast, bird and field. It is the most nutritious of the whole nut family, rich in tissue-building properties, containing glucose and carbohydrates, and is the cheapest. Beyond the shadow of a doubt it is first from both a dietary and economic standpoint.

The fact of the matter is, the peanut is about every way in a class by itself as regards price, average number in pounds, edible part, waste and fat. Peanuts average about 350 to a pound, at a cost of 10 cents; the edible portion is 73.6 waste 26.4 and the amount of fat is placed at 80 per cent of the edible portion.

UP A TREE

By MAX ADELER

One day last fall Peter Lamb was walking by Keyser's orchard, and the apples looked so tempting that he concluded to get over the fence and go up a tree after some. He was just fairly up the tree when Keyser came along with his dog, and as he had had a great many apples stolen, he was pretty mad at finding Lamb in the act of taking some without leave. So after expressing his sentiments in very vigorous language, he told Peter that as he was so very fond of apples he might stay up there all night enjoying them. Then he called the attention of the dog to Peter, told the animal to watch him, and walked up to the house.

As the brute lay down beneath the tree, Peter thought he had never seen such an awful-looking dog, and he called to Keyser to take it away, and to let him pay for the fruit. But Keyser pretended not to hear him. Then Peter tried to scare the dog off by pelting him with apples; but every time he hit the animal he seemed to become more ferociously determined to eat a piece of Mr. Lamb before he abandoned him. Peter then tried coaxing the dog, but the more blandishments he offered, the hungrier the dog seemed to get. Then Peter waited till the dog became calmer and lay down, and then he tried to steal down the other side of the tree; but before he reached the ground the dog was on the alert, and ready to nip Mr. Lamb's calf.

At last Peter determined to resort to strategy. He went up as high as possible in the tree, and took off his boots, his coat, his trousers, and his hat, and, fixing them together by the aid of pins and his suspenders, so that they would resemble the figure of a man, he stuffed them with leaves. Then he carried the effigy down and set it astride one of the lower branches, propping it up so that it would be within plain view of the dog. Then he stepped softly away from it, and waited his chance to slide down the trunk. He made two or three feints, and was delighted to see that when the dog heard the noise it merely glanced at the figure, seemed reassured, and went to sleep again. At last he got clear down to the ground, and when he was a few yards from the tree he ran as fast as his legs would carry him.

It was then late in the afternoon, and he succeeded in getting over to Deacon Jones' without being observed. He found the deacon sitting on the fence, and explained his appearance in a simple shirt and pair of drawers, by saying that he had been swimming in the creek and that somebody had stolen his clothes.

The deacon lent him some raiment, and Mr. Lamb went home bent upon revenge. Redressing himself, he got a club, called his own dog—a bigger animal than Keyser's—and started for the orchard. When he reached it, his old enemy lay beneath the tree watching the effigy. Then Mr. Lamb confidently climbed over the fence and set his dog at Keyser's. A fierce combat ensued, and while it was in progress Peter crept up and knocked Keyser's dog on the head, killing it outright. It was then about dusk, and Peter ordered his dog to lie under the tree and "watch" the effigy, while he hid behind a neighboring tree.

After a little while Keyser came out for the purpose of letting Peter go if he felt penitent. He came up to the tree without recognizing the change of dogs, and addressing the effigy:

"Well, how do you feel by this time?"

"No answer."

"Want to come down?"

"No reply."

"If you'll promise never to steal my apples any more, I'll let you off."

"Still no answer."

"Oh, you're too mad to talk, are you? Well, you just come down, anyhow."

Silence from the effigy.

"Look here, I don't want any more nonsense from you. Come down, or I'll pull you down!"

Then Keyser climbed up the tree and grasped Mr. Lamb's stuffed coat by the arm. He was just about to utter an exclamation of surprise, when Peter came out and said:

"Well, now, you just pull away."

That's my dog under that tree; your dog's dead; and my dog'll eat you up quicker'n a wink if you get off that limb before I tell you. Thought you had me, did you? If the jury knows itself, you'll roost among that foliage until morning. Sick him, Bull, sick him!"

Then Mr. Lamb knocked an apple off another tree, and sat down to eat it. Keyser first began to study up a plan for murdering him; then he had a notion to cry for help. But at last he concluded to accept the situation gracefully; and after some conversation, Peter agreed to let him go if he would swear to send around four bushels of apples in the morning. He registered a solemn oath to that effect, and Mr. Lamb held the dog while Keyser came down. Then Keyser went as near to Peter as he dared, and, shaking his flat at him, he said:

"You low-lived, mutton-headed, bow-legged thief! If that dog wasn't here I'd knock you down and sit on you till I squashed the breath out of you, you wall-eyed scoundrel, you!"

Then he went up to the house. Peter chuckled and shouldered his clothes, and started for home. Those apples have not yet arrived, but Mr. Lamb has not yet been out to inquire for them.

One of Our Old Favorite Poems.

Once in Persia ruled a king,
Who upon his signet ring
"Graved a motto true and wise
Which, when held before his eyes,
Gave him counsel at a glance
Fit for any change or chance
Solemn words and these were they:
"Even this shall pass away."

Trains of camels through the sand
Brought him gems from Samarcand;
Fleets of galleys through the seas
Brought him pearls to rival these;
Yet he counted little gain,
Treasures of the mine or main.
"Wealth may come, but not to stay;
Even this shall pass away."

"Mid the revels of his court,
In the zenith of his sport,
When the palms of all his guests
Burned with clapping at his jests,
He, amid his flags and wine,
Cried: Oh, precious friends of mine,
Pleasure comes but not to stay—
Even this shall pass away."

Fighting on a furious field,
Once a javelin pierced his shield,
Soldiers with a loud lament
Bore him bleeding to his tent.
Groaning, from his wounded side,
"Pain is hard to bear," he cried,
"But with patience, day by day,
Even this shall pass away."

Towering in the public square
Twenty cubits in the air,
Rose his statue grand in stone,
And the king, disguised, unknown,
Gazing on his sculptured name,
Asked himself: "And what is fame?
Fame is but a slow decay—
Even this shall pass away."

Struck with palsy, sere and old,
Standing at the gates of gold,
Spoke he this in dying breath:
"Life is done—and what is death?"
Then in answer to the king
Fell a sunbeam on his ring,
Answering with a heavenly ray,
"Even death shall pass away."

SURETY COMPANIES

MUST PA

In a decision rendered yesterday by the supreme court of Oklahoma the contention of Governor Haskell that surety companies-bonding banks to secure deposits of public funds should assume losses of funds which they have been paid to become responsible for was fully sustained. again making it evident that this state is fortunate in having a chief executive who is thoroughly conversant with business affairs and a man of determination.

When the Columbia Bank & Trust company failed it was carrying various deposits of public funds from county treasuries and the school department which had been secured by the bonds of security companies. These companies forthwith demanded that the state banking board pay such deposits out of the bank's assets and from the bank guaranty fund.

Governor Haskell refused to permit such payments to be made, contending that as the law of the state does not collect a percentage for the guaranty fund out of bank deposits that are secured by surety company bonds and that, as the surety companies receive an annual premium from the bank for assuming responsibility of guaranteeing such deposits, they could not in case of loss unload this responsibility upon the bank guaranty fund.

In the district court the governor's opinion was overruled. The governor refused to abide by the court's ruling and directed Judge Ledbetter, acting as attorney for the state banking board in these cases, to appeal the case to the supreme court of the state, with the result that the highest court of the state has sustained his original contention.

As a result of the supreme court's decision the surety companies will have to bear the loss that they were paid a premium for assuming, and the bank guaranty fund is saved in this case a total of $210,000 by reason of Governor Haskell's determined stand.—Oklahoman.

Our meeting at Egypt closed Sunday, Sept. 11. One of the great meetings for the year. About 50 conversions. Additions 34. By baptism 26. The meeting was well attended although people were very busy in their crops. This closes my year's work in one of the most spirited and intelligent churches in county. This church was organized by Rev. Chas. Stringer, Jos. Shirley and myself at the close of my meeting one year ago with six members. This church now has 60 members. Bro. O. E. NEGRO CONVENTION BREAKS UP IN ROW

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 12.—A. G. W. Sango, the negro leader, who called a state convention of negroes at the negro town of Boley to fight the grandfather amendment, has returned to Muskogee with the statement that "you can't do any business in a nigger town and that the only place for a nigger convention to be held is where there are white officers to keep order." This followed an attempted meeting at Boley last Thursday, which was broken up and adjourned to meet in Weleetka. A meeting that passed a resolution endorsing the party of Lincoln, Grant, McKinley, Roosevelt and Jim Harris, and condemning President Taft as the "only republican president who had repudiated the platform on which he was elected."

There was big doings at Boley. The convention was called for the purpose of raising funds and organizing to oppose the enforcement of the grandfather clause amendment to the constitution at the November election. But there was no organizing, except the convention was adjourned with a six-shooter, and the only money that was raised was "fo' bits" which Sango put up for coal oil to light the First Baptist church, and later $2.50 for the use of an air dome. After he had paid for the oil to light the church he found that the church door had been barred and when he rented the air dome he discovered that the "opposition" had piled stones, a ton of them, on the roof of an adjoining building, to toss down on the heads of the convention if it didn't suit them.

The convention was called to order by Sango and some committees were appointed among them a resolution committee. It was this committee that brought out the endorsement of Jim Harris and the censure of Taft. The adoption of this report broke up the meeting. Sango refused to recognize a man who wanted to speak on the resolution, and there was an up roar.

About 200 citizens of Boley had been sworn in as special peace officers in advance. All carried six-shooters. While Sango waited for the turmoil to subside, a big negro approached from the side and announced, "Ah am the chairman of this convention an' she am adjourned."

Sango looked around to see who had taken charge of his meeting. The new chairman was toying with a big bone handled six-shooter, and as Sango looked up and saw a gang ready to start the stone tumbling from the roof, he informed all who could hear that he guessed the meeting was adjourned.

It was. For at that time a ballyho band hired for the purpose came along by the convention, promising a free show out at the edge of town. The delegates followed the band off and that was the last that Sango saw of his convention.

"It was Jim Harris who put out the poison" says Sango. "He hired that white lawyer, Chappel, from Guthrie to go down and load up for me. Harris wanted the niggers to put up some money for the campaign committee instead of giving it to the purpose of defending the negroes."

Chappel did a good job. Not only was the negro town of Boley loaded against the convention, but it was armed, and the visitors were met with the pleasant announcement that the jail just over the hill was waiting for them. There were more people in Boley than there were delegates, and they were carrying six-shooters. It was soon apparent that Chappel had done his work well, if his chief motive was to control the convention.

After nightfall, when they thought it safe, Sango and a number of the faithful gather together and decided that the only thing to do was to go to Weleetka, where there were white officers to keep the peace. This they did and the following morning twenty four of them met in Weleetka and organized the Negro Civic League of Oklahoma, with the following officers: A. G. W. Sango, of Muskogee, president; Ernest D. Lenwood of Muskogee, secretary; J. Grooms, Oklahoma City, vice president and William Hogan, Chickasha, treasurer.

Sango says that if there is ever another convention called by the organization it will be called in a white man's town.

There were twenty-nine counties represented by delegates at Boley, but they never were recognized.

FARMER'S WIFE HAD HEAP TO DO

Mrs. Shepherd Was in Bad Shape When She Could Not Stand on Her Feet.

Durham, N. C.—"I am a farmer's wife," writes Mrs. J. M. Shepherd, of this city, "and have a heap to do."

"Four months ago I could not stand on my feet, to do anything much, but at this time I do the most of my work. I took Cardui and it did me more good than all the doctors."

"You don't know how I thank you for the Cardui Home Treatment. I wish that all women who suffer from womanly trouble would treat themselves as I have."

Ladies can easily treat themselves at home, with Cardui, the woman's tonic. It is easy to take, and so gentle in its action, that it cannot do anything but good.

Being composed exclusively of vegetable ingredients, Cardui cannot lay up trouble in your system, as mineral drugs often do. Its ingredients having no harsh, medicinal effects, and being non-poisonous and perfectly harmless, Cardui is absolutely safe for young and old.

Ask your druggist. He will tell you to try Cardui.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY IN MAINE COMPLETE

Portland, Maine, Sept. 13.—Complete returns of the vote for Senators and Representatives in the State election yesterday gave the democrats substantial majorities in both branches of the Maine legislature, which at the beginning of the new year will elect a United States senator to succeed Eugene Hale, a secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general and commissioner of agriculture.

The new legislature also probably will be called upon to carry out the declaration of the democratic party platforms of recent years and resubmit to the people the liquor prohibitory amendment to the constitution and to repeal the Sturgis liquor law enforcement act.

According to the unofficial complete returns, the legislature will have a democratic majority of thirty-six on joint ballot. The senate will consist of twenty-one democrats and ten republicans, while the house will have eighty-eight democrats and sixty-three republican members.

The last legislature consisted of 122 republicans and sixty democrats, the republicans having a majority of fifteen in the senate and forty-seven in the house.

Practically complete returns tonight on the vote of the state for governor gave Frederick W. Plaisted, democrat, 73,644, and Gov. Bert M. Fernald, republicans, 64,912, a plurality for Col. Plaisted of 8,732 as against a plurality of 8,064 for Gov. William T. Cobb, republican, four years ago.

The total vote of the two leading parties yesterday was 138,556. Four years ago it was 130,790.

Doubt still exists tonight regarding the result in the Fourth congressional district, Congressman Frank E. Guernsey of Dover, the republican candidate, and George M. Hanson of Calais, democrat, each claiming victory by a small plurality.

In the first district Asher C. Hinds, republican, is apparently elected by a plurality of about 300 over William H. Pennell, democrat, and will occupy the seat in congress once held by Thomas B. Reed.

The second and third districts will have democratic congressmen, as was shown by the returns last night. D. J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston succeeding Congressman John P. Swasey, republican, in the district which Nelson Dingley of Dingley tariff fame formerly represented, while Samuel W. Gould of Skowhegan will be the successor to Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh, republican, who has represented the third district for the last eighteen years in congress.

W. C. Edwards and Judge C. A. Galbraith went to McAlester today on business connected with the bankruptcy proceedings of the Texas Department store.

Improving Apple Trees.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 14.—Growing thoroughbred apple trees, to be registered the same as live stock with pedigrees, is an innovation in Eastern Washington. H. M. Lichty, an orchardist in the Yakima-Sunnyside district, west of Spokane, was perfected a plan to place the science of growing commercial fruit of the highest quality and color and uniform size upon a practical basis.

Explaining his plan, Mr. Lichty said that in every thoroughly cultivated apple orchard there are trees which stand out for yielding most of the prize winners at national and state shows. Scions are taken from these and transferred to other trees by budding and grafting, thus raising the quality. The trees are recorded upon an orchard plat, then registered and a pedigree is issued to the grower.

"I do not claim that all trees so grown will produce premium-winning fruit," he added, "as that cannot be said of pedigreed live stock; but the experience of the foremost growers in the Northwest and other parts of the United States and Canada will show that a greater percentage of high grade trees is raised by following a common sense system than by orcharding in the old haphazard way. My own experiments prove there are superior strains of the several varieties of stand apple trees."

Professor W. S. Thornbar, head of the horticultural department at the State of Washington college, Pullman, and growers in the apple belts in eastern Washington and elsewhere, approve the Lichty plan, the former saying that the products of healthy trees may be improved by building and grafting from superior stock. He added there is just as much difference in apple trees of the same variety as there is in horses of the same breed. The plan of registering trees and keeping a record of yielding performances is also endorsed.

Which Is Superior?

Man is a creature of cast-iron habits; woman adapts herself to circumstances. This is the foundation of the moral difference between them. A man does not attempt to drive a nail unless he has a hammer; a woman does not hesitate to utilize anything, from the heel of a boot to the back of a brush.

A man considers a corkscrew absolutely necessary to open a bottle; a woman attempts to extricate the cork with the scissors. If she does not succeed readily she pushes the cork in the bottle, since the essential thing to get at the fluid.

Shaving is the only use to which man puts a razor; a woman employs it for cutting corns.

When a man writes, everything must be in apple-pie order—pen, paper and ink must be just so; a profound silence must reign while he accomplishes this important function. A woman gets any sheet of paper, sharpens a pencil with the scissors, puts the paper on an old atlas, crosses her feet, balances herself on a chair and confides her thoughts to paper, changing from pencil to pen and vice versa from time to time, nor does she care if the children romp or the cook comes to speak to her.

A man storms if the blotting paper is not conveniently near; a woman dries the ink by blowing on it, waving the paper in the air or holding it near a lamp or fire.

A man drops a letter unhesitatingly in a box; a woman re-reads the address, assures herself that the envelope is sealed, the stamp secure and then throws it violently into the box.

A man can cut a book only with a paper cutter; a woman deftly inserts a hairpin and the book is cut.

For a man "good-bye" signifies the end of a conversation and the moment of his departure; for a woman, it is the beginning of a new chapter, for it is just when they are taking leave of each other that woman thinks of the most important topics of conversation.

A woman ransacks her brain trying to mend a broken object; a man puts it aside and forgets that for which there is no remedy.—Popular Magazine.
